we will keep at our opening, and many more kinds if trade will justify it:— qualities, its strongest claim on the public favor rests in its absolute purity and cleanliness, being a clean, creamy paste, easily and conveniently applied. For

STEPPING STONES TO SUCCESS.
Learn your business thoroughly.
Keep at one thing—in nowise change.

Always be in haste, but never in a hurry.
Observe system in all you do and undertake.

Whatever is worth doing at all is worth doing well.
One-to-day is worth two-to-morrows.

Be self-reliant; do not take too much advice, but rather depend on yourself.

Never fail to keep your appointments, nor to be punctual to the minute.

Never be idle, but keep your hands or mind usefully employed except when sleeping.

Use charity with all; be ever generous in thought and deed—help others along life's thorny path.

Make no haste to be rich; remember that small and steady gains give competency and tranquillity of mind.

He that ascends a ladder must take the lowest round. All who are above were once below.

Think all you speak; but speak not all you think;
Thoughts are your own; your words are so no more—Where Wisdom steers, wind cannot make you sink; Lips never err when she does keep the door.

A MORAL COWARD.

Yesterday forenoon, at High Bridge, a gentleman, with his wife and little boy, left a table in one of the beer pavilions and started for the door, leaving his cane behind him.

Six waiters seized it and bore it to him in a body.

First (enthusiastically)—You forgot your cane, sir!

Second (triumphantly)—You forgot your cane, sir!

Third (confidentially)—You forgot your cane, sir!

Fourth Waiter (artlessly)—You forgot your cane, sir!

Fifth Waiter (hopelessly)—You
forgot your cane, sir!

Sixth (self-assertively)—You forgot your cane, sir!

The unhappy man took the cane regretfully, handed each waiter a quarter, and rejoined his wife timidly.

Wife (threateningly)—How much did you pay them?

Gentleman (despairingly)—Dollar-and-a-half.

Wife (disgustedly)—And the cane cost?

Gentleman (gloomily)—Fifteen cents.—New York Sun.

A SIAMESE BAND.

One of the most curious, if not the most attractive, features of the musical exhibition at South Kensington will be the Siamese bands; and as the instruments upon which these bands will play have just arrived from Siam, their performance may now be daily expected. Few people know exactly what a Siamese band is; and misapprehension appears to prevail pretty generally.
Even the official guide to the exhibition goes astray when it announces performances "by the Court band" of the king of Siam; for that band (which is composed of females) never plays outside the king's palace. The performers, who arrived in England nearly a month ago, but without their instruments, include the three bands called the Mahoree, the Bimbat, and the Klong-Kak.
The last named is a noisy trio of drummers, who perform after the Malay fashion. The Bimbat is the orchestral and military band of Siam. It includes fifteen musicians, who play chiefly on wind instruments of cunning make. "Mahoree" means "music," and the band of this name will probably be found the most pleasant to listen to. It is composed of sixteen players on stringed instruments, the names of which we forbear to give. A singer is also included. It is to be hoped that when the Siamese do appear in the exhibition the management will take steps to keep them sufficiently warm, especially if they appear in native costume.—St. James' Gazette.

BOIL THE DRINKING WATER.

Spencer F. Baird, Secretary of the Smithsonian Institution, Washington, has issued the following letter, dated June 15th, 1885:—

I wish to call the attention of your readers to the beneficial effect of boiling in increasing the potability of water, a fact which does not appear to be generally appreciated or understood. Had this practice pre-valled at the first outbreak of the typhoid disease at Plymouth, Pa., it is very probable that the number of cases of illness and of deaths might have been very greatly diminished.
In cholera season this treatment is especially important, as water is largely the medium of introduction of the injurious influences into the system.

During the centennial exhibition I was stationed in West Philadelphia, near the Centennial building, for six months, and although cases of diarrhea were prevalent all around me, the use of boiled water appeared to be an absolute preventive. We had several cases of illness of this class before we began to use this very simple precaution, but none afterward. The fishy taste of the Potomac water at the present time, due to the solution in it of decomposed vegetation or of fresh water sponges, can also be in great measure removed by the same process.

I have usually enough water boiled in the morning to last through the day. This is placed in a large water cooler, without ice, and drawn from when required to fill ice pitchers. The water should boil actively for half an hour, in order to kill the germs of disease. Of course, this is only effective in cases of organic impurity, as mineral poisons would not be destroyed thereby.

Kentuckian (rushing into a saloon in great haste)—Here, give me a drink of whiskey. Bartender—I'll have to go down cellar and tap a fresh barrel, colonel; the old one has run out. But it won't take me ten minutes. Kentuckian—All right, go ahead, but be quick about it. I've just heard that my house is on fire, and I've no time to lose.
